I don't think there's any chance we will go on Monday (unless I get an unwelcomed surprise call from the clerk today). If anything, it would be later in the week. There is at least one case ahead of us- a rape case that has high priority. I'm waiting for a call back from the ADA on that case to confirm that she's ready to go and how long the trial will be. My best guess right now is that our case should be plea. If not it's likely we won't get reached at all, and we'll end up getting a new date. Of course, strange things happen so I just wanted to give you a heads up. Thanks.

You are correct - I wasn't aware of this trial date, but I think I would be available in the afternoon on Monday. I also have a District Court case scheduled in Holyoke on May 7th, and I don't know where it is on the trial list, but if it does go to trial, I expect to be done by 11:30-12:00 as Holyoke moves pretty quickly. I can also let the ADA know about your case if you find out it is going to trial, and I'm sure he'd work with that. Just keep me informed of what is going on. Thanks.

Commonwealth v. [REDACTED]

Good Morning

This case has just been reassigned to me. The case is actually scheduled for trial on Monday in Superior Court in Fall River but I'm not expecting it to be reached next week at all. Looking through the file I can't find any notice to you of this trial date. In the event that the cases ahead of us fall through, can you be available to testify? Sorry for the short notice, but it looks like this file has bounced around a bit.

Also, please send me a copy of your CV. I can't find that in the file either. Thanks.
